The 2017 National PEP Conference

Post-exposure prophylaxis (PEP) refers to any prophylactic treatment started immediately after exposure to a pathogen to prevent infection and the development of disease. Although commonly linked to the prevention of HIV, there are many types of PEP that offer protection against a wide range of diseases for many different groups of people. Pre-exposure prophylaxis or PreP, is a prevention option in some countries for people who are at risk of getting HIV. It is meant to be used consistently, as a pill taken every day, and to be used with other prevention options such as condoms.
